

FAQs for Study in Germany

1. What is the requirement of studying in Germany?

·For Studying in top Universities at Germany, you require to have good academics and English Proficiency.

2. How much it cost to study in Germany?

·Many of the public universities are available which provide a free education to all the student, but they teach in German and proficiency for Foreign language is required to study over there. While if you enrol in any private institution to learn in English the fees starts from around 10,000 Euros. The living in Germany cost around 600-900 Euros /month.

3. Do I need to learn German to study in Germany?

·If you want to study in public university, then you need to learn German language. While if you enroll yourself into any English taught university then learning German is not compulsory.

4. Do German universities teach in English?

·Only Private universities teach in English.

5. Is IELTS required for Germany?

Most of the universities require IELTS as it is mandatory criteria for them. To study abroad in Germany you need to hold a higher education entrance qualification or Hochschulzugangsberechtigung (HZB). This qualification can come in many formats, particularly for international students who have gained their school-leaving qualifications in a different country.

For prospective undergraduate students, a high-school diploma, school-leaving certificate or university entrance exam result is usually sufficient. For postgraduate programs, students need to provide an undergraduate degree certificate. Usually, if your qualification would allow you entry into higher education in your home country, it will also be sufficient to allow you to apply to German universities. To check whether your current qualifications are recognized for study in Germany, use the form on this page.

If you find that your qualification is not recognized, you are also able to take a preparatory course at a Studienkolleg before taking a compulsory assessment test known as a Feststellungsprüfung. This assessment will cover areas that are relevant to the program you wish to study and will prepare you for university.

If you wish to undertake a program being taught in German (the teaching language of most undergraduate programs in Germany), you will also need to prove your German proficiency (see question five below for more information).

In addition to German-language proficiency and an entrance qualification, you may also need to meet the specific entry requirements of your chosen university program. These requirements depend on the reputation of the school and of the program, and can be found by looking at the program information in the university's prospectus or online.

6. IELTS score require for Germany?

·6.0 Or more band is helpful to secure place in any top institute for study.

7. Can I study in Germany without IELTS?

·Options are also available for enrolment on the basis of MOI in private universities.

8. Can I work in Germany while studying?

·20 Hours of work is permissible while you are studying in Germany.

9. Which course is best for job in Germany?

·Germany is an Engineering Hub and top companies are available which recruit qualified engineers. So Engineering related courses help to get best job opportunities.

FAQs for Study in Germany

10. What are the top universities to study in Germany?

· Many top universities are available to study in Germany. Most of the student prefer public university for free education, but for that you need to learn German language. While if you opt for any private university with same level of education, you can learn in English. To know more about private university, Click Here.

11. Cost of study in Germany?

· For studying in Germany you need to have your tuition fees which ranges from 11000 Euros to 18560 Euros and also to cover the living expense you need to have a blocked account of 10,236 euros.

12. Study in Germany in English?

· Many of the private institutes provide study option in English.

13. Job opportunities in Germany after completing the study?

· There are lot of Job opportunities over there. There are jobs. There is no scarcity or dearth of jobs, there are plenty but the question is whether you prepare yourself for the job or not while studying in Germany. It doesn't matter what you have done till now. After you go there, interact with your seniors and ask them what particulars things companies ask for and learn that during your studies. Attend Job fairs for good job prospects.

14. What is VFS for Germany?

· VFS is basically Visa Facilitation Services, it is an outsourcing and technology services company that serves governments and diplomatic missions worldwide. The company manages visa and passport issuance-related administrative and non-discretionary tasks for its client governments. There is no Embassy or consulate interview. File is been submitted to Embassy by Germany VFS and then you directly get visa based upon your file with 45-90 Working days.

15. How to get PR in Germany?

· Germany is the second most popular migration destination in the world, after the United States and is becoming more and more popular for private individuals and international companies. The reasons for the interest in immigrating to Germany are very diverse. Germany is the largest economy in all of Europe and focuses on innovation. This attracts many companies from abroad to Germany. Social security, a high standard of living and the fact that German passport is the most powerful in the world are further reasons for immigration to Germany. When you apply, you'll need to prove that you have enough money or a job that pays enough for you to support yourself and your family unit without the need for government assistance. Also, your living space must be big enough. This seems to mean a minimum of 13sqm per person. In addition to these requirements, you should enroll in an integration course or show proof that you speak German at a B1 or better level and that you have the necessary knowledge about German law and culture.

16. What are the German study visa requirements?

· You can Click Here to get details about documents required to have your student visa.

17. Why select Germany for abroad study?

· Germany is the third most popular destination among international students in the world. More than 12% of the populations are of International students. Recently Germany is becoming a magnet for International students from all over the world. Germany is an ideal place to study, it has rich & complex history & culture which every student look forward in a new country. The education system in Germany highly focus on international domain, thus the number of international students coming to study is ever-rising. Almost in every University lectures from all around the world come to share their expertise, mainly in English. Almost many Universities offers graduates & post graduates programs for interested students depending on their aim, as a student you will find it very hard to get bored even for an instant as there are always stimulating activities happening around regardless of the city students are living in. Because of the higher education standards and the advanced technology environment, students who study in abroad have better job opportunities and higher job roles in their hometown. This is one of the major reasons.